THE SPEAKERS

Rev Prof Andy Gosler is Associate Professor in Applied Ethnobiology and Conservation at the University of Oxford, a position which evolved out of his work as a field ornithologist studying bird ecology in Wytham Woods and his teaching of ecology, evolution, ethnobiology and conservation for the BA degree in Human Sciences. He is employed jointly by the Department of Zoology and the School of Anthropology and Museum Ethnography, and Fellow in Human Sciences at Mansfield College. It was through this work that he found faith, was baptised in 2000, professed as a Franciscan Tertiary in 2017, and having trained at Ripon College, Cuddesdon, was ordained Deacon in 2018. He is Curate in the Benefice of Marston and Elsfield, Oxford.

Dr John Bimson was Tutor in Old Testament at Trinity College, Bristol, from 1981-2015. From the 1990s he also developed and taught modules on environmental theology, and he occasionally returns to the college to lecture on that subject. He and his wife Maya now live in Mid-Wales, where John pursues his hobbies of bird-watching and writing and they both enjoy walking in the Cambrian Mountains.

Chris Naylor has been Executive Director since April 2010. He joined A Rocha in 1997 working, until 2009, as Lebanon Director where he co-founded the work. He oversaw the habitat restoration programme at the Aammiq marsh, the development of the environmental education project and the field research programme; identifying 11 new Important Bird Areas nationally. Prior to joining A Rocha, Chris had a wide experience of science teaching and schools' management in the UK and the Middle East, attending Bible College and learning Arabic (in Jordan) along the way. He holds a Master's degree from Cambridge University and a PGCE from Nottingham. He was born in 1961 and is married with three children.

BOOKS

If you borrowed books from the Principal Tutor travelling collection last time, please bring them back! You can only borrow further books if you do so! The Hodsons will be bringing along some of their books for sale. There will also be a variety of other relevant literature for sale.

TRAVEL

a) By Car

Ripon College Cuddesdon (RCC) is located in the small village of Cuddesdon about 4 miles East of Oxford. The postcode is OX44 9EX, for those of you who use on-line maps. Full directions are given on the RCC web site:

<http://www.rcc.ac.uk/>

We want to use as little carbon as possible, so sharing cars seems sensible! If you can offer a lift, or would like one, let us know and we will see if it is possible. Students and Local Tutors might benefit from travelling together- lots of time to chat!

b) By Train to Oxford Station. We will arrange lifts from the station, but allow at least 30 minutes to get out of Oxford and over to Cuddesdon. So aim to arrive before 9.30 a.m. Let us know time of arrival.

c) Both the Oxford Tube (<http://www.oxfordtube.com/>) and Oxford Bus Company (<http://www.oxfordbus.co.uk/espress1.shtml>) run many coaches out of London from Victoria station stopping at a few places in London on the way. You need to get off at the Thornhill Park and Ride just East of Oxford. We will arrange lifts if you tell us a time. Aim to be there before 9.45 a.m.

d) Emergencies on the day. Martin Hodson will base himself at RCC from about 9.00 a.m. on the day. He will turn his mobile on- 07794-631927. Note- he very rarely puts his mobile on, and messages left on it may only get picked up weeks later!! So it is not a standard route to contact Martin, but will be useful on this occasion.

e) We are in the Harriett Monsell Room, which is the ground floor room in the new block that we have used for some of our previous meetings. If you are coming from Oxford this is nearer the first car parking area!
